Attending a volleyball camp can be a great experience for a young player.

A young player will improve her skills level and knowledge of the game by working on both fundamental techniques of the game and overall team concepts. Plus the players get to make new friends who they will likely play with and against over the next few years. To get most out of the camp, it is very important that all participants show up in peak physical condition. We want to spend time focusing on the skills of the game.
